Types of Cosmetics

Cosmetics can be divided into several main categories:

- Base makeup: This includes products that create an even base for the rest of your makeup, such as foundation, primer, and concealer.
- Eye makeup: This includes products that enhance the eyes, such as eyeshadow, eyeliner, mascara, and eyebrow pencil.
- Lip makeup: This includes products that color and enhance the lips, such as lipstick, lip gloss, and lip liner.

- Face makeup: This includes products that are applied to the face to add color and definition, such as blush, bronzer, and highlighter.
- Nail makeup: This includes products that are used to color and decorate the nails, such as nail polish, nail art, and nail accessories.

Ingredients

Cosmetics are made up of a variety of ingredients, including:

- Pigments: These are the ingredients that give color to cosmetics.
- Binders: These are the ingredients that hold the pigments together.
- Emollients: These are the ingredients that make cosmetics smooth and creamy.
- Preservatives: These are the ingredients that prevent cosmetics from spoiling.
- Fragrances: These are the ingredients that give cosmetics their scent.

Application Techniques

There are many different ways to apply makeup, depending on the look you want to achieve. Some basic techniques include:

- Stippling: This technique involves using a brush or sponge to pat the product onto the skin.
- Blending: This technique involves using a brush or sponge to smooth out the product and create a seamless finish.
- Contouring: This technique involves using dark and light products to create shadows and highlights on the face.

- Highlighting: This technique involves using light products to emphasize certain areas of the face.
- Baking: This technique involves setting the makeup with a powder to create a flawless finish.
