The Macedonian is a small, independent ship that operates outside the law. The crew is a motley group of individuals, each with their own unique skills and motivations. They are led by Captain Jellico, a brilliant but ruthless commander who is determined to make his fortune by any means necessary.

The novel opens with the Macedonian taking on a new contract: to transport a group of refugees from a war-torn planet to a safe haven.

However, the mission quickly goes awry when the ship is attacked by pirates. The crew is forced to fight for their lives, and they eventually manage to defeat the attackers. But their victory comes at a cost: several of the refugees are killed, and the ship is badly damaged.

Undeterred, the Macedonian crew continues on their mission. They eventually reach the safe haven, but they are met with suspicion and hostility. The refugees are afraid of the privateers, and they don't want them to stay. Jellico is furious, and he decides to take matters into his own hands.

Jellico leads the Macedonian crew in a raid on the refugee camp. They seize control of the camp and take the refugees hostage. Jellico demands that the planet's government pay a ransom for the refugees' release. The government refuses, and Jellico threatens to kill the hostages.

The situation quickly escalates into a full-scale war. The Macedonian crew is outnumbered and outgunned, but they are determined to fight to the end. They are joined by a group of rebels who are fighting against the government. Together, they launch a desperate attack on the government forces.

The battle is bloody and brutal, but the Macedonian crew and the rebels eventually emerge victorious. They overthrow the government and establish a new, more just society. Jellico is killed in the battle, but his legacy lives on. He is remembered as a hero who fought for what he believed in, even when the odds were stacked against him.
